David Raves of Maiello, Brungo & Maiello Appointed Council Member of the Allegheny County Bar Association's Construction Law Section

January 6, 2003

David Raves, an associate of the law firm of Maiello, Brungo & Maiello, has been appointed as a council member of the Construction Law Section of the Allegheny County Bar Association (ACBA).

The ACBA's Construction Law Section serves as a forum for members to share information and promote education and development among members. The Section also encourages the development of professional relationships among ACBA members in the area of construction law, which includes contract negotiation, project development and financing, project design and management, litigation and mediation, surety bonds and insurance, as well as various other components of construction projects. Mr. Raves has been appointed to a two-year term.

Mr. Raves focuses his practice in the areas of construction, litigation, real estate, land use and zoning. He earned a bachelor's degree in architecture from Carnegie-Mellon University and his law degree from Duquesne University School of Law. Mr. Raves is a registered architect in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and spent nearly a decade as an architect with firms in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia before starting his law practice. He is a member of the American Bar Association and the Construction Legislative Council.

Maiello, Brungo & Maiello is a multi-practice law firm based in Monroeville, Pa. The firm provides legal services in the areas of school and municipal law, litigation, banking and finance, labor and employment, real estate and construction.
